Stylish, innovative new Deliver-Eze parcel letterbox is an Aussie world-beater

A versatile parcel letterbox tops the list of new products to be launched this week at the 2014 Herald Sun Home Show in Melbourne.

The unique Australian-designed and engineered Deliver-Eze® parcel letterbox range accepts large packages and regular mail simply and securely. It features world-leading space efficiency and aims to satisfy demand for an integrated home mailbox that can accept online shopping, courier and Australia Post package deliveries.

The flexible modular design suits just about any installation, integrates stylishly into most kinds of new and existing fences and is available as a stand-alone pillar.

The brains behind the Deliver-Eze parcel letterbox is former automotive design engineer Neil Silke. He says his experience with missed deliveries and abandoned parcels on the doorstep led him to seek a smart solution to a problem he knew was shared by many other busy people.

"I took a close look at what was available worldwide, saw the limitations, did plenty of benchmarking and finally came up with a compact, space-efficient design that hit all the targets.

"It had to look good, it had to accommodate big parcels, multiple packages and normal mail deliveries; it had to keep them safe; it had to be easy to use and install and it had to be a high-quality, durable unit.

"I'm pleased to report that our Deliver-Eze range is already attracting a lot of interest from fencing companies, architects and builders. We look forward to demonstrating its capabilities to a wider public audience at the Herald-Sun Home Show this week."

Good looks, big capacity

Like the cars he once helped to engineer, Neil Silke's upmarket parcel letterboxes have plenty of kerb appeal, accentuated by high-quality marine grade stainless steel and powder coat finishes.

There's a choice of three models, designed to suit most home applications. Each integrates a patented anti-theft chute that maximises parcel capacity and allows multiple deliveries into a locked, rear-access storage compartment.

The 'Malvern' can be mounted in new or existing timber, brick and most other fence types, while the 'Brighton' is suitable for building into brick or block masonry pillars. Both are manufactured in Australia.

The stand-alone 'Mosman' pillar parcelbox was developed for homes without front fences and complements contemporary architectural design. Finished with a render-effect composite, it can accommodate large items such as a deep-sided carton of wine and multiple packages with ease.

All models will securely receive the majority of packages, including A3 size, and boxes sized up to 325mm x 315mm x 225mm. They can hold multiple parcels and are tamper- and weather-resistant.

Courier companies and Australia Post can deliver to a Deliver-Eze parcel letterbox without the need for a special code.
